Beginning of the School Year Blessing

Dear Lord, we ask for our blessing as we begin this new school year. Open our eyes to the new challenges and exciting opportunities that this new school year brings. Open our hearts and minds to new friends and teachers. Give us a generous spirit to be enthusiastic with our studies, courage to accept new opportunities and inspire us to do our best this year. Amen.

To Live is to Learn

We usually read about scandals in the boulevard press, not in the Bible. But the Gospel can easily scandalize us. We know Jesus as someone who is welcoming to everyone, who invites the marginalized people to his table and does not exclude anyone from his company. The way Jesus treats the Canaanite woman is very unusual, to say the least. The poor woman pleads with him for her sick daughter but Jesus rudely refuses to help her. His final remark comparing the Israelites to the children of God's household and the pagans to dogs is definitely offensive.

Scripture scholars have been struggling with this passage. Was Jesus only pretending to turn her down in order to test her faith? Or was he in the beginning of his ministry truly convinced that his mission was limited to the people of Israel? If so, he then saw himself in line with the prophets whose vocation was to bring the people back to the abandoned Yahwe as John the Baptist had done. Maybe it took Jesus time to realize that his mission was not only to Israel but the whole of humanity. And the extraordinary faith of this pagan Canaanite woman opened his eyes to recognize that gentiles, non-Jews, were also called to the kingdom of God.

Human life, from the day we are born until we die, is one long learning process. To be human is to learn, to adapt to new situations, to understand oneself, the world around us and the ways of God ever more deeply. If Jesus was truly human, gaining new insights and growing in wisdom were also a part of his life. He did not know everything from the start. He had to learn.

The Gospels point to such moments when Jesus grew in wisdom and understanding. As a teenager, during his first pilgrimage to the temple and again during his baptism in the Jordan, Jesus had a mystical experience of God being so intimate and close that he spoke of Him as his true "Abba", Father. Pagans who had greater faith than his own disciples astonished him and made him realize that they, too, were loved by his "Abba" and called to share God's life.

Jesus is a model for us in his openness to recognize new realities, to see God's Spirit at work in unexpected ways. There was a time when we thought that only Catholics would go to heaven till one day we met men and women of great faith, who were Protestants. And we realized that they were maybe nearer to the Spirit of Christ than we were ourselves. With the horrors committed by Muslim fanatics in the Middle East, we may be inclined to look at all Muslims as dangerous and violent, unless we meet Muslims who radiate great goodness and holiness. Are we – like Jesus – ready to see God at work where we did not expect him and accept that God is so much greater than our heart?
